WHEELING, MARCH 20, 1894.

An Organ's Steady Grind.

The Register does not understand the matter of the proposed increase in the internal revenue tax on cigars. In the beginning it insisted that no increase would be attempted. The senate sub-committee did attempt it with a vengeance that stirred up the manufacturers and the wage-earners of Wheeling and elsewhere to send in protests and to send delegations to Washington. The Wheeling delegation is there now with others.

It appears now that the effort to increase the tax from three dollars to five dollars has been abandoned by the senate committee. If there had been no protest by manufacturers and wage-earners and the newspapers that sympathize with them there would have been no abandonment of the purpose.

The Register took no part in the protest because it is always for the bill, no matter what may be put in or left out of it—was for it as it went to the house, in the changed condition in which it came out of the house, as the senate sub-committee at first proposed to amend it and with the radical changes since made in it.

If in the end the Democrats in Congress were to resolve that it is better to let the McKinley act stand, the Register would nerve itself to be for that, too, for it would then become a Democratic measure.

Is there days the Easter bonnet is the question of the hour.

A Weak Argument.

Assuming that the President will sign the seigniorage bill or allow it to become a law without his signature, one of the reasons given for his position on the question is that if he were to veto the bill the silver men would be enraged and do something worse. On the contrary, if the bill becomes a law the silver men will take no further action to force more silver on the country, being content to await international action. This is a weak argument. If the seigniorage men could not get the Bland bill through over the veto they would have little chance to pass a worse measure. If they can bulldoze the President with the Bland bill they will be encouraged to go further and try a free coinage measure on him.

Victorious fanatics are not usually disposed to follow conservative courses; nor is it their way to let the vanquished up when they have him down without getting out of him all they want so far as the underdog has stood in the way. All the President has to do in this matter is to do right. If Congress persist in doing wrong that will not be his fault, and his own example will shine by contrast.

We are obliged to General Coxey for not coming this way with his army. The distinction may be undeserved, but it is appreciated.

A Big Administration Scandal.

The Democratic New York World says it is "a scandal of huge dimensions" that the people and their representatives regard Attorney General Olney as the attorney of the trusts and are afraid to let him manage the Union Pacific railroad case; "but, the attorney general is himself the author of that scandal, and the President, who obstinately keeps him in office, is its godfather."

It may be supposed that the President knows his attorney general, knows what entangling alliances he has, and knows why he keeps him in office. Of course is a scandal, but "what are you going to do about it?"

TAMMANY's health must be very bad or it would not feel it necessary to remain away so long from home.

Pleeting From Wrath.

Justice Sutherland, of Gravesend, is believed to have gone to Canada for his health. At all events he was not in court yesterday when sentence was imposed on him. Yet some of the gang have taken great offense when it was said that they were in Texas or California as a measure of precaution and might take a sail beyond seas to get a peep at foreign lands.

The Tweed gang, political progenitors of this later gang, did a good deal of traveling in their latter days. It would not be surprising if the disappearance of Sutherland prove to be the beginning of another historic hegira. The conditions are ripe for it, not ripe.

The Grafton Sentinel, that staunch old Republican paper which has done so much to keep up the big majority for the party of protection in Taylor county, has been purchased by Dr. Earnest L. Love and will be conducted by him hereafter. The new editor announces that the paper will continue to uphold Republican principles and work for the best interests of the party. Dr. Love is an able writer and an aggressive partisan and his success as an editor is a foregone conclusion.

The governor of Colorado is its most distinguished citizen.

The Verdict Ready.

Col. Breckinridge's lawyers seem to be under the impression that Miss Pollard is a candidate for the presidency and must be made blacker than the evil one. To the country Miss Pollard is Miss Nobody.

The defendant is the person of importance. It is he who has been posturing as a great and good man, and leading two lives, one real, the other a deceit. Miss Pollard is fixed in his real life. The blacker she is painted the more somber the shadow that lies on Col. Breckinridge.

If through nine years of a close acquaintance sought by himself the young woman from the country deceived the seasoned man of the world, the man who is now known to have deceived his wife through all those years, to have deceived another wife before the honeymoon was over, to have deceived the people of his district who trusted him, to have led generally the life of an impostor—what right has he to complain? The public will not take into account whether Miss Pollard did or did not delude Colonel Breckinridge. The verdict of the public will be on a quite different line, in fact is made up now for the conviction of the defendant of a vulgar crime against his family and society.

"WHAT is a jury?" asks the Richmond Dispatch. Often it is eleven stubborn men who won't listen to reason.

Wrong Again.

As passed by the house the Wilson bill, to increase the revenue under the new measure, raised the tax on cigars and the senate, with the same object, raised it several notches more. It has since been shown, however, that this increase would produce more revenue than will be necessary and so the whole scheme in the new bill has been wiped out, and the tax will remain as it is under the present law without any change.—Register.

Wrong again. The internal revenue tax on cigars is not "raised," for it is not changed at all, in the Wilson bill as it passed the house. The present tax is three dollars. The senate sub-committee proposed to increase it to five dollars.

Neither is it true that the senate committee takes the back track because the bill would produce too much revenue. The tax is let alone in response to vigorous protests from an interest that is too southern to be ignored.

SENATOR LINDSAY, of Kentucky, says the Democrats can't go as far as they would like with the tariff bill in the senate, because the Democratic majority there is so small. If they had as full swing as they have in the house the dose would be still more drastic. Everybody knows this, and it is one of the reasons why the next house and the next President will not be of the mischief-making Democratic party.

The striking miners of Cripple Creek, Colorado, go to work on the terms they rejected in the beginning. It is a pity that they did not come to this conclusion before they arrayed themselves against the law and made it necessary to call out the troops to preserve the peace.

An exchange notes the growth of the apartment hotel system and says, "this plan dispenses with the annoyance of housekeeping." It dispenses also with the essential conditions of a home. There is a type of the American that is becoming too lazy to have a home.

The Democratic party has nothing to gain by unseating Republicans to admit a few more Democrats to the house, but those few Democrats want the seats and the pay and their party is expected to oblige them.

PERSONAL POINTS.

The late George G. Lohdell, the car-wheel manufacturer of Wilmington, Del., bequeathed an annuity of $500 each to seven religious, educational and charitable institutions in that city, which is to be continued as long as Mrs. Lohdell survives. The annuities are then to cease and each institution receive a gift of $5,000 from his estate.

The people of Goettingen are going to build on their own account a kind of Babel tower to the memory of Bismarck. It was there that Bismarck went to study, and fought no less than thirty-six victorious duels, and it was in Goettingen that he had two American chums—John Lothrop Motley and Amory Collins.

S. F. B. Morse, the inventor of the telegraph, had beautiful hands, a fact that caught the attention of Benjamin West while Morse was yet an art student. It was Morse's hand that furnished West with the model for the hand of Christ in one of West's most famous compositions.

About Political Pirates.

The senate finance committee has wisely decided to leave the internal revenue tax on cigars and cigarettes alone.

This will be a sad blow to our Republican friends who have been industriously and gleefully whooping and howling about the impending ruin of the cigar-makers' industry, and counting on it to take in barrels of political capital, which they have been chasing up hill and down dale ever since the bill was reported.

No increase will be made, and these political pirates find themselves with the wind taken out of their sails on a dead calm political sea.

A PIRATE VOICE FROM RICHMOND.

Our federal oppressors firmly believe that the people may rightfully be called upon to surrender their purses in the name of God and the Federal Congress.

We have no rights which a national tax collector is bound to respect. And so it becomes necessary for the people threatened with the destruction of their business to re-enforce their congressional delegations by sending to Washington delegation after delegation of business men entrusted with the duty of trying to induce our law-makers not to tax our tobacco trade out of existence.

Shall our petitions be unheeded? Or, will they be regarded by Congress? The situation is liable to change day by day, and so nobody can foretell what is to be the fate of the tobacco industry of the land. Let us hope that these interests have some influence in Washington.

TWO PRIZE FIGHTS.

A Coal Barge in the Middle of the Ohio River the Scene of the Mills.

CINCINNATI, O., March 19.—On a coal barge lashed to a steamer anchored in midstream on the Ohio river about thirty miles below Cincinnati two fistie encounters were fought and the parties returned to the city shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon. The first was between Wiley Evans, colored waiter weight of California, and Fapper Griffin, of Cincinnati. Griffin was really knocked out in the fourth round, but he stood up for the fifth in such a condition that his seconds threw up the sponge.

The second fight was between Kid Ryan, of New Orleans and Kid Thompson, of Kansas City. Ryan was knocked out in the eighth round so thoroughly that it took him fifteen minutes to recover.

COMMODORE WHITING DEAD.

The Veteran Naval Officer Dies From the Effects of His Injuries.

New York, March 19.—Commodore William D. Whiting, U. S. N., retired, who was knocked down and run over by a cab on Broadway nine weeks ago, died to-day. For more than a year previous the commodore had been a sufferer from kidney trouble, which was aggravated by the accident until it produced death.

Commodore Whiting served under Perry in the expedition to Japan, and was the first officer of the fleet to set foot on Japanese soil. He was retired October 12, 1881, on account of failing sight, and later became totally blind.

Two years before his retirement Commodore Whiting proposed a plan for the reorganization of the navy which provoked considerable discussion.
